

KLOVE & AIR-1 are very important in the life of myself, my entire family, and the community in general. These radio stations do not air commercials that are against my Christian beliefs, as many secular radio stations do. They are 'family friendly', meaning I do not have to monitor what my 4 year-old is listening to. I know they will not use offensive language or advertise anything that I do not want my child to hear about or hear about myself, for that matter. I myself work for the Government and find great refuge in being able to break away from my employment and get a refreshing breath from the radio during my breaks. The music is uplifting and always positive. When I'm working 'in the field' I can listen and become more relaxed as well as helping my client hear that not all music and radio stations are the same. Please don't impose 'your rules' on 'our' radio stations. We've been doing great so far without your help or input.

- (a) 'We're' doing great without a Community Advisory Board presently as well as in the past. It's disturbing, that in all probability, the Appointed Individuals would not be Christians & ultimately not be 'friendly' to the Christian mission or what is important to 'us'.
- (b) KLOVE & Air-1 are LISTENER SUPPORTED and it would cause 'us' an unnecessary burden financially to have to hire & pay required additional staffing. Additionally, some of the smaller radio stations may be forced to close because of these unnecessary financial burdens imposed by the FCC.
- (c) If our translators could no longer carry KLOVE programming, this would discourage and frustrate myself and my family, in the least.

The above appears to be discriminatory practices based upon the Christian faith. We're not causing any problems, so why can't the FCC just leave 'us' alone...? How about Freedom Of Speech....?

Sincerely,
Jennifer Swyers
